About the data

Your goal is to predict a student's earnings a set number of years after they have enrolled in United States institutions of higher education. The data is compiled from a wide range of sources and made publicly available by the United States Department of education.

Target Variable

We're trying to predict the variable income, which represents earnings in thousands of US dollars a set interval from when the student first enrolled.

Submission Format

The format for the submission file is two columns with the row_id and the income. The data type of income is a float, so make sure there is a decimal point in your submission. For example 0.0 is a valid float. 0 is not.

For example, if you predicted...

row_id	income
2	0.0
8	0.0
9	0.0
10	0.0
11	0.0

The first few lines of the `.csv` file that you submit would look like:

```
row_id,income
2,0.0
8,0.0
```

9,0.0
10,0.0
11,0.0

Performance Metric

We're predicting a numeric quantity, so this is a regression problem. To measure regression, we'll use a metric called Root-mean-squared error. It is an error metric, so lower value is better (as opposed to an accuracy metric, where a higher value is better).

$$RMSE = \sqrt{\frac{1}{N} \sum_{n=1}^N (\hat{y}_n - y_n)^2}$$

Where \hat{y}_n is the predicted earnings and y_n is the actual earnings. The best possible score is 0, but the worst possible score can be infinite.

Features

There are 297 variables in this dataset. Each row in the dataset represents a United States institution of higher education in a specific year. The dataset we are working with covers four particular years, denoted `year_a`, `year_f`, `year_w`, and `year_z` in our dataset. An institution may have a row for all, some, or just for one of the years. We don't provide a unique identifier for an individual institution, just a `row_id` for each row.

The variables in the dataset have names that of the form `category__variable`, where `category` is the high level category of the variable (e.g. `academics` or `students`). `variable` is what the specific column contains.
